

Advanced Internet Security Service FIREWALL DEFENCE Helps Businesses Comply with Regulatory Standards

Brand new managed firewall service from Network Defence quickly and easily enhances online perimeter security whilst reducing costs

07 July, 2009 – Leading managed services provider Network Defence has announced its new FIREWALL DEFENCE service. The Internet security service gives businesses a more secure and cost effective way to access the Internet and protect themselves from the ever-increasing number of security threats and vulnerabilities, helping towards compliance with regulatory standards.

The brand new managed firewall service quickly and easily secures businesses from both internal and external threats, monitoring their perimeter security solution 24/7 to enhance continuous, secure operations of Internet services.

FIREWALL DEFENCE utilises businesses' existing firewall platforms, saving time and money by letting them maximise the potential of their existing infrastructure.

David Beesley, MD for Network Defence said: "As modern businesses connect to the Internet for email, web browsing and online applications, a big challenge they face is being able to do it all securely and cost effectively. FIREWALL DEFENCE provides businesses with a proactive managed service which delivers the best security cover available from a team of highly trained security experts."

"The service is quick to implement and helps to reduce costs and minimise the potential costs to businesses of an outage to their Internet services or a security breach. Furthermore having external expert support allows their in-house IT resources to focus on delivering core business IT services to staff and clients.”

FIRWALL DEFENCE is part of a comprehensive range of managed services delivered by Network Defence including, FIREWALL DEFENCE PLUS, EMAIL DEFENCE, WEB DEFENCE and TOTAL DEFENCE.
